

Impact investing internship

Job Title:	Department:
Intern	Sustainability

Affirmative Investment Management (AIM) is a dedicated impact bond asset management company. All our investments support the UN Sustainable Development Goals and the global Paris Agreement on climate change. AIM is a small-sized company with a global presence in the UK, US, and Australia.

Overall purpose of the role:

We're looking for someone starting out their impact investing career to join our Sustainability Team as an intern.

This paid internship will focus on our work on our award-winning impact reporting as portfolio data collection kicks-off in early 2022. It's a big dataset so we're particularly looking for someone with strong quant skills and attention to detail.

The intern will also have the opportunity to support the Sustainability team's work in general. Familiarity with sustainability and climate concepts a plus.

This is a full-time position to start in January 2022 for approximately 3 months with the possibility to extend. Have a read of one of last year's reports to get an idea of what you'd be working on.

Strong preference for an intern that can be in our London office a couple of times a week.

How to apply:

If you're keen, email us with a couple of paragraphs explaining why you're interested and your CV. We will consider applications on a rolling basis so early application is encouraged. Internships at AIM are remunerated.
